Induction Approach

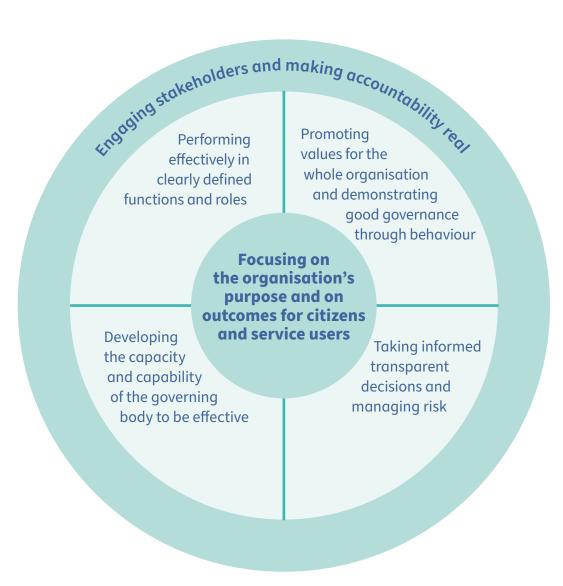

This resource aims to provide NES Board Members and other interested people with information about the NES Board. It is primarily made up of links to material available on the internet, as such it aims to provide this material in one place. It will be kept current by refreshing these links as and when appropriate.

It is intended for the use of new NES Board Members to read as part of their induction process. The resource sits on the NES Board's website and can be used as a source of induction material for members of other public bodies. It is hoped that this single reference point helps people easily find material and refer to it as and when they require.

Prevention of Bribery, Fraud and Corruption

NES has a justified reputation for acting with integrity, transparency and honesty. You must be committed to the prevention of bribery, fraud and corruption in recognition of the importance of maintaining the reputation of NES and the confidence of the public, partner organisations and other stakeholders.

You should note that NES will not work with other organisations who it considers do not share its commitment to preventing bribery, fraud and corruption.

Social Media Advice for Board Members

The rules of good conduct apply when you are engaging in media activity including the use of social media.

The conduct expected of you within a digital medium is no different to the conduct you should employ in other methods of communication, such as face to face meetings and written correspondence.

Whistleblowing

All NHS Scotland Boards now have dedicated Non-Executive Whistleblowing Champion (NWC) roles in place. These non-executive board-level appointments aim to promote an organisational culture of openness and transparency, in which all staff feel confident to raise any concerns. NWCs do not investigate whistleblowing concerns at an operational level; they perform a scrutiny function.

Key responsibilities include assuring compliance with the national Whistleblowing Standards and the monitoring of the delivery of the Whistleblowing Policy. This is a critical oversight and independent assurance role.

Gillian Mawdsley was appointed as the NES NWC. This appointment is for four years (1 February 2020 to 31 January 2024).

NES Professional Regulators

NES currently commissions, funds or quality manages programmes subject to external scrutiny by a regulatory body or other organisation. The annual report on NES externally regulated education activities is designed to provide assurance that key relationships with regulatory/scrutiny bodies are managed effectively, and that cases of suboptimal quality are being addressed.

Following an audit of governance oversight of NES's externally regulated education activities a register of regulated NES educational activity was developed, specifying the source and type of regulator scrutiny, etc.

The latest register of externally regulated NES activities is available below.
