

NES Multiprofessional Advanced Practice Toolkit

The Importance of User Driven Improvement

Authors

Sarah Tait - Lead Advanced Practitioner NHS Borders, Clare Tarr - Speech and Language Therapy Team Lead NHS Grampian and Catrin Evans - Principal Educator NHS Education for Scotland

Background and Aim

The Advanced Practice Toolkit was originally designed to give practitioners, educators and managers easy access to credible and supportive resources and information on advanced practice. Advanced practice is dynamic and ever changing so the toolkit needed to be refreshed to reflect the new multiprofessional workforce across Scotland. The refreshed toolkit aims to support the professional development of advanced practitioners in nursing, midwifery, allied health professions and pharmacy across the four pillars of practice.

Project Journey

User Feedback

Results

- User forum provided good engagement and feedback resulting in the development of multiprofessional toolkit content.
- Shared ownership of material.
- An innovative, interactive, and dynamic toolkit.
- Examples of practitioner journeys and stories have enhanced user experience.
- Steady increase in users of the toolkit since relaunch in Nov 2023 across NMAHPs and Pharmacy.

Conclusions

- Through collaboration with the user forum, we have been able to produce a multiprofessional toolkit which will continue to grow and evolve with their support and feedback.
- The Editorial Board will provide ongoing content governance and quality assurance.
- Going forward we are looking at new ways to share information and will be introducing themed podcasts.
